

HOLDS UP MAN TO GET MEDICINE FOR SICK BRIDE

Clarence Lamberton, Admitting Robbery, Breaks Down in Court and Tells Pitiful Story.

Six weeks ago Clarence Lamberton, thirty-two years old, of No. 125 Coffey street, Brooklyn, was married. He had saved up $500 to furnish a home for his bride, and as he was a man of good habits, all seemed bright and happy for his venture on matrimonial seas. Yesterday Lamberton was brought before Magistrate O'Connor in the Tombs Police Court and pleaded guilty to holding up Henry Branlop of No. 29 Pearl street, robbing him of $574, and violating the Sullivan law by carrying a revolver.

Branlop told the Court Lamberton entered his grocery store in Pearl street, yesterday afternoon. He said Lamberton had pointed a revolver at him and demanded he give him the contents of the cash register. This, Branlop said, he did, as Lamberton threatened to kill him, if he made an outcry. The robber then left the store and was afterward arrested by Policeman Marshall Truitt and identified by Branlop. "I had to have money," Lamberton told Magistrate O'Connor. "It was not for myself, but for my wife. She's sick in bed and I had to have money for doctors and medicine. We had been married but about two weeks when I lost my position. All my savings were gone. I had put the money into our home and had nothing but what I could earn."

"For three weeks I tramped the streets looking for work. I could not find anything to do and then I got desperate. My wife had to have medicine and food. I was determined to get it for her somehow. My father-in-law is a watchman over in Brooklyn. I went to his home and took his revolver. Then I went to Branlop's store and made him turn over his money to me."

The man broke into tears and buried his head in his arms. "I guess I was mad when I took that revolver, but the thoughts of the girl I married such a short time ago lying sick in bed and me unable to get her medicine made me crazy."

Lamberton was taken to the Tombs to await the action of the Grand Jury. Magistrate O'Connor took a personal interest in the man's story and will have Lamberton's condition investigated by proper authorities.

SHIP RUNS AWAY; GOES ON ROCKS AS ISLANDERS WATCH

Residents of Rosebank, S. I., Are Treated to a Novel Wreck Scene.

Residents of Rosebank, Staten Island, were treated to the sight of a novel shipwreck, shortly before noon today. They saw a big, three-masted schooner come ashore and run up on the rocks, within 100 feet of the nearest piazza. There was no need for rescue, but for a time there was a good deal of excitement in the neighborhood.

The schooner was the Annie F. Kimball, bound out light for Norfolk. She had anchored off Rosebank during the night, and the skipper waited until about 11 o'clock today, before proceeding on his way. With a brisk north-east wind blowing, the anchor was raised.

The skipper had planned for a blast of wind that would carry his vessel off shore. With the anchor up, however, the Kimball turned with her nose pointed for the shore. The wind caught the sails full and hurried her along at cup defender speed.

Then there was quick action aboard the runaway craft. The captain could be heard by those on the shore bawling out his orders.

"Let go everything," came the cry, and in a trice the sails came flapping down to the deck.

Already the schooner had sufficient momentum to carry her to the shore. "Let go the anchor," yelled the captain again, and the chain rattled out.

Before the anchor caught, however, the Kimball was on the rocky ledge. The captain had swung her helm around and she struck broadside. A short examination showed she was hard and fast.

Along came a power boat and a line was sent to her. The power boat had not the strength to move the Kimball. Soon a fleet of tugs rushed down to the scene, offering assistance. Among them was a big wrecking tug belonging to the Chapman-Mettrick Company. The captain considered awhile before selecting one to tow him off.

In the mean time Staten Islanders gathered on the shore and swapped talk with the members of the crew of the wrecked schooner. The captain said he did not think that she was damaged to any great extent, and that he hoped to be off before long.

SAYS GIRL SUING HIM FOR $25,000 TOOK RING IN PLAY.

Attorney Delorenzo Denies Even Having Promised to Marry Miss Emma Milani.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Dec. 15.—Lawyer William Delorenzo, a member of the Hackensack Board of Education, who is being sued for $25,000 by his former stenographer, Miss Emma Milani, for breach of promise, took the witness stand today and denied emphatically he was ever engaged to Miss Milani.

He said the ring she wore was taken from his finger by her in play, and the books and other articles she had of his were taken by her from his library.

Delorenzo admitted having spoken to Miss Milani's parents, saying he told them at some future time he might ask to become engaged to their daughter. He denied he had ever embraced Miss Milani or kissed her in the presence of her family.

"I would feel too ashamed to do such a thing," the witness said. "I told Miss Milani if my former sweetheart, Miss Lucy Ziaak, went to Germany, I would like to become engaged to her, but until that time I would make no promises. I had broken off with Miss Ziaak temporarily, but when she decided not to go to Germany, we became engaged again and I told Miss Milani of it."

"MAN OF MYSTERY"
TRAIN WRECK VICTIM.

George Kimmel, Denied as a Relative by Own Family, May Die from Injuries.

MARION, Ind., Dec. 15.—George A. Kimmel, the Niles, Mich., "man of mystery" in the insurance case, who was injured in a Chesapeake and Ohio passenger train wreck near Converse, Ind., last night, developed paralysis of the limbs today and is not expected to recover. Kimmel suffered two broken ribs and an injury to his spine. Charles M. Haney, a travelling salesman of St. Henry, O., also was severely injured and twenty other passengers were hurt. The wreck was caused by the breaking of a flange of a wheel on the tender.

Kimmel, who served a term in prison under another name, went to Niles on his release, where relatives denied he was the man he claimed to be. Kimmel retorted that it was because an insurance policy had been paid on his life, he having been reported dead.
